

Atlantic City Re-employment services for laid-off workers

AC Re-Employment Initiative: National Emergency Grant

You may qualify for employment training or job placement assistance* if you were laid off from the Revel, Trump Plaza, Show Boat or Trump Taj Mahal casinos in Atlantic City, or if you were laid off from any restaurants or businesses located inside one of these impacted casinos. (Employees who were laid off from the Trump Taj Mahal may be eligible even though the casino remains open.)

The New Jersey Department of Labor and Workforce Development is currently scheduling Atlantic City Re-employment (ACRE) sessions for individuals who qualify for training or job placement services. If you were laid off from the affected businesses and are collecting unemployment insurance benefits, you will receive a notice in the mail with a date and time you are required to report to an ACRE session in the coming weeks. Open sessions are available on a first-come, first-served basis and are limited to 30 people a session. All ACRE sessions will be held at the Atlantic-Cape Community College campus in Atlantic City.

How can Jobs4Jersey.com help you?

Being laid off from your job is one of the most traumatic events you can experience in life. If you're facing a possible layoff, or if you have been laid off, from an Atlantic City casino, restaurant, hotel or any other business affected by the casino closings, you'll find the best information about re-employment services at Jobs4Jersey.com.

Jobs4Jersey.com is also where you can file for unemployment benefits online — the fastest way to get your unemployment benefits. The most important thing to remember is that, in the face of a potential layoff, you should begin your search for re-employment immediately. Don't wait until your employer closes.

Jobs4Jersey.com offers the online job-search service "OnRamp," and also lists the locations of the nearest Jersey Job Club, where you can get started on your pathway to employment.
